

Make it easier to verify real-world software that use external resources like memory, secure information, network protocols, etc.

The new languages I am working on move well beyond the state of the art
like Agda.